CAA Summer Theater Camps

The Community Arts Academy is accepting registrants for their summer session which take place in July. For proper placement, use student's grade level in the fall of 2014.

Dramagination (grades K-3) allows kids to explore acting, directing and playwriting, including character development, movement, and vocal techniques. The class takes place in Studio Theatre at Kettler Hall, Monday through Friday, July 7-11, 9 a.m.-10:30 a.m. The cost for five 90-minute sessions is $79.

Youth Drama (grades 4-7) is a smaller class that provides one-on-one interaction and a true ensemble feeling. Kids will learn blocking techniques, how to "act" with others, how to score a script and other acting essentials They will focus on scene work by taking a closer look at creating a character and improvising small scenes. The class takes place Monday through Friday, July 7-11, 10:30 a.m.-12 p.m. The cost for five 90-minute sessions is $79.

Theatre Masters (grades 8-12) allows kids to gain confidence in their performing abilities. They will learn acting and audition techniques and how to approach a cold reading, building skills in character and relationships through monologues and scenes. They will learn voice mastery and standard theater industry exercises. Classes take place Monday through Friday, July 14-18, 3-5 p.m. The cost for five two-hour sessions is $89..

All classes are taught by IPFW graduate Gloria Minnich, a local actress and professional acting instructor, and take place at Studio Theatre in Kettler Hall on the IPFW campus. Contact CAA at 481-6977
