Calling All Young Musicians!

Does your young musicmaker hit the right notes?

The Sweetwater Academy and Mynett Music are proud to partner with Whatzup to acknowledge the wealth of musical talent in northeastern Indiana. The 20 Under 20 Awards highlight talented young musicians throughout the region. Winners will be featured in a future print issue of Whatzup and online at Whatzup.com.

Friends, family, parents, and music educators may nominate musicians from the area. To be considered for this award, the nominee must be under 20 years of age as of March 25, 2021, and live in one of the following Indiana counties: Allen, Wabash, Whitley, Noble, Wells, Adams, Huntington, Kosciusko, Dekalb, or Steuben.

An expert panel of judges will lead in the selection of honored musicians based on criteria including:

Musical Skill & Knowledge

Community & School Music Activities

Academic Performance & More

Storyteller can't wait to tell tales with guitar

Martin highly respected western swing player

BY STEVE PENHOLLOW

WHATZUP FEATURES WRITER

When Carolyn Martin was 16, she sat alone in a restaurant booth in Abilene, Texas, crying over a breakup.

"I had a crush on some boy, and he had broken my heart," she said in a phone interview with Whatzup. "I can't even remember who it was."

In those days, restaurant booths were often equipped with small jukeboxes and the teary-eyed Martin selected a tune.

She may not remember the boy today, but she remembers the tune: Freddie Hart's only number one hit, "Easy Loving."

Easy lovin', seein's believin'

Life with you's like livin' in a beautiful dream

It's the opposite of a breakup song, but it helped Carolyn feel better. It also helped her appreciate the power of music.

"It's one of the best country records ever made as far as I am concerned," she said.

GROWING UP IN ABILENE

Carolyn had been learning guitar for two years at that point and she has since devoted decades of her life to connecting with people through music.

In recent years, Carolyn Martin has become one of the most highly respected practitioners of the western swing tradition in the world. In even more recent years, she became a Fort Wayne resident.

She will perform with her full band on Feb. 4 at the Club Room.

Carolyn Martin's full band features her longtime husband, Dave, on bass. If you are lucky enough to have caught their living room and kitchen duets on Facebook during the pandemic, then you are well acquainted with their extraordinary musical chemistry.

Dave and Carolyn grew up on opposite sides of Abilene and went to different schools.

Carolyn got a job at a music store that Dave frequented, and she eventually hired him to play bass on a recording project.

They ended up dating for three years and got married in 1981.

The early years of their marriage were spent on the road in various bands. They didn't have a musical specialty in those days.

"We did top 40 country," Carolyn said. "Whatever that was at the time. Top 40 pop. For a short time, we even did disco. We were trying to make a living. Whatever they were paying us to play, that's what we were playing."

In 1985, the Martins decided that we had to put down roots somewhere.

"If we didn't," she said, "we knew that 20 years would pass, and we'd still be doing the same thing."

They tried Dallas, but that didn't work out. Then they tried Nashville, which did.

The Martins made ends meet by playing wedding receptions and corporate gigs, many of them at the Opryland Hotel.

On one job, Carolyn was dressed as Patsy Cline, singing versions of Cline's hits that had been altered to reflect the corporate client.

CAROLYN MARTIN

"We did some crazy stuff," she said. "But it was all great fun. Gosh, I loved doing that. I just wanted to work. It didn't matter to me whether were playing downtown or at the Opryland Hotel. We played in people's houses and we played in hotel rooms."

A BIG BREAK WITH TIME JUMPERS

In 1999, Carolyn went to see some friends perform with their band, the Time Jumpers.

The Time Jumpers, a swing band, was only a year old at that point. They went on to win a Grammy award in 2017 (and count Vince Gill as a member).

The Time Jumpers asked Martin to sit in and, before long, she was a full member of the group.

"There were 9 or 10 people in the band at that point," she said. "And often we outnumbered the people who had come to hear us."

Carolyn was involved with the Time Jumpers for 11 years before she left to form her own swing band.

Awards and accolades for the Martins' western swing work followed, including a "Hero of Western Swing" honor from the Cowtown Society of Western Music. Carolyn has also won the Academy of Western Artists' Will Rogers award many times.

TELLING STORIES IN FORT WAYNE

Prior to Dave being summoned to Fort Wayne to work as a producer and house bass player at Sweetwater Sound, he had his own recording studio in Joelton, Tenn., called Java Jive.

He sold it to a man who intended to keep it a recording studio. Dave had to leave his massive book collection behind, so it is no surprise that the new owner of the studio decided to rename it the Library.

Before COVID-19 became a factor in the lives and livelihoods of most musicians, the Martins had a regular gig at Hall's Guesthouse. The Guesthouse was one of the early casualties of the pandemic.

They also played several weekly concerts at various area retirement homes, Carolyn said, but the pandemic severely curtailed that as well.

The popular streaming shows that the Martins performed last year were an undeniable boon, however Carolyn said she doesn't know when things will fully ramp back up, but something she heard actor Bryan Cranston say on a podcast gave her hope.

"He said people are always going to want to hear stories," she said, "whether they're two or 100. They will always want to hear stories and they will always want that communal experience of sitting in a room with strangers. I agree.

"Now, will we be able to sit shoulder-to-shoulder again for a while? I don't know," Carolyn said. "But, gosh, I am looking forward to that again."

Namen Namen release lo-fi video for new single ▼resh off their virtual Embassy Theatre performance, Namen Namen have released a music video for their new tune "Big Brute Prison Blues."

The video doesn't necessary have a storyline, special effects, or a celebrity cameo. To be honest, it doesn't even need it. The video is basically Dylan, Rob, Kellen, and Zara jamming in the midnight hour at a local park. They venture to the swing set, go down a slide, and spit in a pond.

For the three-plus-minutes, you'll be entertained with their quirky antics as well as a solid tune. So sit back, escape some of the craziness, pull up YouTube, and enjoy the video.

Namen Namen have been busy writing and recording, so be on the lookout for more in the future.

From 7-11 p.m., you can enjoy music

TUNE IN TO NEW MORNING SHOW

Have you given a listen to 96.3XKE's new Free Beer and Hot Wings Morning Show during your commute? The syndicated morning talk show, broadcast primarily from WGRD in Grand Rapids, Mich., is hosted by Gregg "Free Beer" Daniels, Chris "Hot Wings" Michels, Joe Gassman, Kelly "Cheese" Cheesborough, and producer Steve McKiernan.

Although the show doesn't feature music, they deliver four hours of brilliant, funny radio every day. If you haven't yet, tune in and give it a whirl every weekday from 6-10 a.m. The addition replaces The Bob & Tom Show which was recently moved to 1250 AM WGL.

WATCH THE BIG GAME

With the Chiefs and Buccaneers set for Super Bowl LV on Sunday, Feb. 7, the only question is: Where are you going to watch?

If football, food, tasty beers, and cigars sound intriguing, all those fine items will be on tap at Copper Canyon Tobacconist (3261 St. Joe Center Road) during their party beginning at 6 p.m.

METAL NIGHT

Carl's Tavern in New Haven will play host to a night of metal at 8 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 27. The lineup features local stalwarts Coffin Witch, Cremated Souls, and Blood of Heroes, plus the San Antonio outfit PigWeed.

Inspired by the likes of Metallica, Korn, Deftones, Tool, and Slipknot, PigWeed's sound embraces various flavors of metal, punk, hardcore, and progressive. Since their formation in 2009, they have shared stages with acts like Volbeat, Mushroomhead, Drowning Pool, Kittie, and Powerman 5000.

Four blistering bands for $8. That's a steal!

Get your fill of produce at farmers markets

√ort Wayne is fortunate to have → farmers markets that provide an excellent source for good produce as well as meats, jams, baked goods, and crafts all year long.

During the colder months, The Fort Wayne Farmers Market has moved to Parkview Field inside the Lincoln Financial Event Center where the Saturday morning market will be each week from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. through May 8. After that you can visit it in its usual location near the corner of Douglas and Webster.

News and Venues MICHELE DEVINNEY

The popular YLNI Farmers Market, still often referred to as the Barr Street Market, has moved indoors to the former Aunt Millie's location providing plenty of space for all they have to offer. The market is opened from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. each Saturday and will move back to its more familiar location in May.

Although the Southside Market is currently closed, it reopens on April 3 which is just weeks away. And they provide a slightly earlier start time (8 a.m.) for those who like to get a jump on the day.

ARTS UNITED AWARDS

Although 2020 offered a somewhat limited array of performances and arts programming, there was still much to admire and enjoy thanks to the hard work and ingenuity of several local people who often found ways to make lemonade out of lemons.

Arts United typically celebrates local artistic achievements with their annual awards ceremony, and while this year's were held virtually, they still found ways to show appreciation for many who worked above and beyond the call of duty last year.

Among the 2020 honorees were:

- Francisco Reyes for his beautiful mural projects and his efforts to collaborate, give voice, and provide artistic feedback to younger artists.
- Andre Portee for revitalizing basketball courts in southeast Fort Wayne with artistic symbols of black
- Northeast Indiana Regional Partnership for the Make It Your Own Mural Fest which drew work from local, national, and international artists
- Rachael Driscoll who is part of the Mural Fest team but also volunteers countless hours for Art This
- Fort Wayne Museum of Art's Chalk Walk which adapted its usual downtown chalk art to local neighborhoods so artists could work at home.
- Fort Wayne Civic Theatre's summer production of 1776 which moved to the Foellinger Theatre for safety and featured an all-female cast in honor of the 19th Amendment Centennial.
- The Honeywell Foundation for providing programming through movies and concerts at the 13-24 Drive-In and through virtual camps.

The Arts United Lifetime Achievement Award was given to David Meyer for his arts advocacy as trustee of the Auer Foundation. The Mayor's Arts Award was given to Art This Way for bringing artists downtown to paint works on plywood which covered businesses following the protests in Fort Wayne last summer.

Kudos also to recent Liddell Award honoree Derek Reeves for providing the original soundtrack to the television broadcast of the awards as well as the Art Farm where the awards themselves were designed and made.

News and Venues covers Northeast Indiana's music and arts organizations, venues, and colleges, from large to small. Send your news items to info@whatzup.com.

Mumford & Sons

Delta Diaries

Mumford & Sons have put together a package that recaps recent events in the band's career. Delta

Diaries combines a six-song EP featuring live recordings from their 2018-19 world tour with a 100-page tour book full of pictures and notes.

In true modern fashion, the EP is available in digital download, CD, and vinyl formats. It's a commercial move sure to move the band's many critics to fits of disdainful glee.

Few bands have been heaped with critical disgust the way Mumford & Sons has. First, their retro folk was met with skepticism from those who were sure anyone with a beard who wasn't from Austin couldn't be legitimately rootsy.

Then, when the band tried to shift its sound toward less contrived mainstream pop rock, they were accused of selling out.

It was clear that Mumford and crew weren't going to be able to do anything right. And the songs on this set's EP aren't going to change anyone's mind.

The unflattering comparisons to Coldplay will continue, thanks to grand performances like "Slip Away," and hints of U2 emulation creep in on "Blood." A cover of Nine Inch Nails' "Hurt" is perhaps an unwise inclusion, given that no one (including Johnny Cash) can make the ultra-melodramatic song sound anything but ridiculous.

A better choice is "With a Little Help from My Friends," which at least capitalizes on the good-natured spirit of the band's fans.

This set is exclusively for fans. The EP is 30 minutes of exactly what critics hate about the band, and there's nothing on it that is likely to convert anyone to fandom.

But for those who are already among the faithful, it's probably a nice memento of pre-pandemic life. — Evan Gillsepie

Morgan Wallen

Dangerous

Morgan Wallen's new double album is a massive barrage of bro country. If anything sets Wallen somewhat apart from other practitioners of the genre, it's his relatively unpolished, hoarse, slurred vocals.

But that's only a minor distinction. After dropping the brand names of his boots and pickup in the first verse of the first song, Wallen starts 97 minutes of singing about dirt roads, trucks, boots, Daisy Dukes, and the Bible. Much of it is wrapped in the hip-hop-inspired trappings of pop country, with its R&B beats and twangy redneck raps.

The one cliche that Wallen leans most heavily on is the tried-and-true country theme of heavy drinking. An astounding 23 out of the 30 songs on the double album feature alcohol prominently in their lyrics and/or titles.

The booze shoutouts make use of cliches within cliches. Drinking is either the catalyst for the party, an integral part of a romantic date, or the method for dealing with a break up. If the raw, biting "Cover Me Up" seems head and shoulders above the other alcohol songs, that's because it's a cover of a Jason Isbell song.

It's a cliche in itself to complain about country music's drinking problem, but you've got to wonder at what point the obsession, absent any real introspection, destroys a musician's appeal. Given the amount of heartbreak surrounded by alcohol in the songs, you'd think Wallen might question his assertion that "beer don't start nothing but the party" in "Beer Don't."

At the very least, he could have at least questioned the point of giving us a double album more than two-thirds full of essentially the same song.

Monochrome Echo

Moonkeeper

While listening to Monochrome Echo's new album Moonkeeper, I was reminded of simpler times, times when dystopian science fiction films didn't have to have dread-inducing scores filled with ominous synth and hellscape ambient tones, when touches of light and elements of electro pop could cleanse the mental palate after someone is twisted into a pretzel by an alien force or black hole.

Simon Little, aka Monochrome Echo, gives us plenty of hopeful optimism on his newly imagined score. Instead of going dark and dreary, Little takes it in more of an anthemic direction.

Moonkeeper is an album filled with heroic themes and uplifting heights. Pop undertones give us a score to the kind of sci fi adventure that usually has a happy ending. Or at the very least, a bittersweet one.

Album opener "Moonkeeper" gives us early '80s vibes from the get-go. Light and airy synths are accompanied by a solid electro beat. Little brings us into his world with an engaging melody and a melancholy lean.

"Europa Outpost" is reminiscent of early '80s Tangerine Dream. Edgar Froese could get as heady as the best of them — he might have even created heady synth, come to think of it — but by the '80s he was indulging his pop tendencies.

Monochrome Echo is bringing the best of both worlds together here, with deep space vibes and electro pop drive. "Into The Darkness" has the weight of a ballad with the cold touch of terror just around the corner.

Elsewhere, "A Race Against Time" locks into some Zombi vibes, while "The Stalker" gives us some serious sonic dread. "Escape Velocity" has the tension and momentum of a brilliant

Backtracks CLASSIC ALBUMS

Beck
Mutations
(1998)

As far as musical artists are concerned, Beck Hansen fits easily into my Top 5. This was his sixth album, and although not commercially successful, it's still one of my favorites from the multi-talented musician.

The opener, "Cold Brains," is a trippy, shoegaze number that sort of echoes Radiohead, mostly because of producer Nigel Godrich, with spacy synthesizers and a well-placed harmonica. "Nobody's Fault But My Own" is also a dreamy number that floats around for five beautiful minutes. Not a lot of hip-hop or funk on this record, but it's still pure Beck.

"Lazy Flies" borrows from The Beatles, and yes, I'll allow it from Hansen.

"Canceled Check" has a little alt-country vibe and is a close cousin to what Wilco has been throwing down for the last 20 years. The melodic "We Live Again" is another beautiful track on an album that has no fillers.

Every track has depth and range; including the Bossa Nova number in "Tropicalia." The then 28-year-old wasn't experimenting. He was shifting gears with Mutations, and it needs to be recognized and honored.

Another hidden gem on the album is the toe-tapper "Bottle of Blues." More folk-rock than blues, the lyrics are smart and the arrangement takes you to a different place as the album sort of winds itself down.

A beautiful piano arrangement (and a soft trumpet) in "O Maria" creates another atmosphere altogether, but doesn't insist upon itself. And "Sing It Again" seems organic on a record that was completed in just two weeks. This brief recording period is unheard of by today's standards.

If anything, this was Beck for us older folks. He tapped into the '60s and '70s vibe that was missing in the late '90s.

Beck continues his journey, and I'm glad to have hitched a ride since 1994's Mellow Gold.

action sequence as time runs out. "Afterburner" closes out this chapter with the strut of "mission accomplished", but not without some casualties.

I love the world of Moonkeeper. There's a real flow from beginning to end, and it plays as both an imagined soundtrack and a solid electro pop album. Monochrome Echo has made an album of sonic intellect and visceral beauty. — J. Hubner

No lockdown for annual festival at Ohio prison

he organizers of the Inkcarceration Festival in Mansfield, Ohio, have officially posted that they are going full speed ahead with plans of having their three-day festival this year.

The festival dedicated to rock music and tattoo artists takes place at the site of the former Ohio State Reformatory, which is also the site where most of The Shawshank Redemption was filmed.

Road Notes CHRIS HUPE

Never mind that there are also many reports of hauntings at the prison. You'll be too busy rocking to notice if one or two patrons come up missing via supernatural means.

The event will be July 23-25 and, even though it is now a cliché to say it, there will be limited capacity and strict COVID-19 protocols to ensure the safety of fans.

More information will be released on who is actually playing the shows, but past headliners have included Shinedown, Godsmack, Weezer, Limp Bizkit, Blink-182, and Five Finger Death Punch. As you can see, though it's all rock, the lineup usually runs the gamut of sub-genres.

LOTS OF LIVESTREAMS

On the livestream front, notable upcoming events include Dream Theater on Jan. 30, Mogwai on Feb. 13, Nightwish on March 13, Bob Weir on March 20, and Cradle of Filth on May 12.

The Dream Theater livestream is actually a video stream of their performance filmed at the historic Nippon Budokan in Tokyo, Japan, in September 2017. This show features a live performance of the classic album Images & Words in its entirety.

Mogwai will perform their new album, As the Love Continues, in its entirety for the first time, giving fans a chance to hear it six days before its official release on Feb. 19.

Meanwhile, Weir is appearing as part of the Oates Song Fest 7908, a virtual event featuring John Oates, Weir, Dave Grohl, Sammy Hagar, Jim James, Keb Mo, Shawn Colvin, Michael Franti, and Daryl Hall.

The concert aims to raise money for Feeding America. The show is free, but viewers will be asked to donate to the cause.

'CRIPPLE THREAT OF COMEDY'

Former America's Got Talent contestant Ryan Niemiller will perform at the Eagles Theatre in Wabash on Feb. 25. Niemiller, who placed third in season 14 of the show, calls himself the "Cripple Threat of Comedy" because, despite being born with a disability in both arms, he is able to hilariously share his views of the world from the perspective of the handicapped.

After the year we have had, the laughter he will bring to Wabash will undoubtedly be a welcome relief.

Road Notes covers concerts within driving distance of Northeast Indiana. Send your news items to info@whatzup.com.

Smashing success at Fort Wayne rage room

Grab a bat or golf club, work off some steam

If you walked into my basement office right now, you would naturally assume that someone had ransacked the place.

You might even peg me as the sort of person who gets so angry that he flips tables.

But I have never flipped a table in my life. I have bumped into plenty, but never flipped one. I'm just a slob; a passive destructive Rage is something I have never been able to accumulate much of. So I wondered Person what sort of emotions I might experience at All The Rage, a series of "rage rooms" that opened in Fort Wayne in August 2019.

The rage room phenomenon started in Japan about a dozen years ago, according to

For a fee, you don protective accoutrements and enter a fortified room where you are given license to break things such as printers and pitchers to relieve stress and tension.

Also, rage, presumably.

I would go so far as to say that rage rooms are safe spaces for rage instead of from rage, even though that's the sort of seeming contradiction that caused computers to self-destruct on Star Trek.

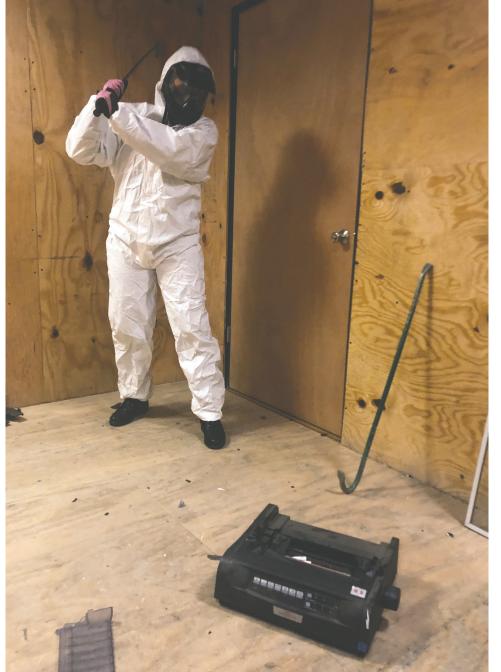

As a clumsy person, my dream is to pay a fee to enter a room where I am prevented from breaking anything accidentally for at least an Nevertheless, I decided to visit All the Rage and determine if I could tap a hidden well of intentional destructiveness.

I brought my friend Jaclyn, who seems even less capable of accumulating rage than me. So incapable is she of accumulating rage that it really makes me quite angry.

Not really.

I am grateful to Abby Greutman, co-owner of All The Rage, for reassuring me that the dictionary definition of rage is not the same as the "rage room" definition.

ALL THE RAGE

2307 Spy Run Ave., Fort Wayne $20-$120 · alltheragefw.com

"You don't have to be angry to rage," she said. "I am not an angry person either. I am probably the last person in a room who will get angry. But I find it to be a really fun letting go of responsibility."

A Letting-Go-Of-Responsibility Room? Now you're talking!

STEP INTO THE CAGE

Jaclyn and I chose the Let's Rage package, which provided us with 26 random items to break and one large item that we could choose.

In homage to a certain scene in the movie "Office Space," we chose a printer.

"We hear 'Office Space' referenced often," Greutman said.

Even I can admit that I have gotten angry in the past at errant printers and copiers.

If you have old stuff at home that you are angry at, All the Rage allows you to bring it in

"You don't have to be angry to rage. I am not an angry person either. I am probably the last person in a room who will get angry. But I find it to be a really fun letting go of responsibility.' — Abby Greutman co-owner of All the Rage

and exact revenge on it.

But you should exercise good judgment.

For example, you might prefer to give up your grudge against those old bottles of Nitroglycerine in the shed.

All the Rage gets its items from area thrift stores with which it has forged agreements, Greutman said.

Some rage rooms across the country allow patrons to tape a photo or drawing of someone they are angry at onto an object slated for destruction, but All the Rage doesn't want to get into that.

"A lot of rage rooms do allow patrons to do that," Greutman said. "But we have a strict non-violence-against-others policy."

Before you enter a rage room, you have to dress up in what Greutman calls "marshmallow suits."

In our marshmallow suits, cut-resistant rubber gloves and protective headgear, we looked like we were "about to go make some meth," according to Jaclyn.

Let me assure you that we have no firsthand knowledge of that activity.

Patrons can choose whatever music they want to listen to while they are raging.

I tried to find a funk playlist on Spotify, but inadvertently chose a slow jam mix instead.

Word to the wise: You will laugh too hard to be able to swing a bat if you try to destroy property against an aural backdrop of Luther Speaking of (baseball) bats, that was my weapon-of-choice. Jaclyn chose a golf club.

SAGE ADVICE

Maybe it is because we're wimps, but we quickly came to realize that breaking things is harder than it seems.

Nothing we threw against the wall broke.

Some items even resisted several initial bat

Jaclyn found her greatest satisfaction in jackhammering shards of things that I had already taken a crack at.

We had a good time, but I must be unflinchingly honest here and reveal that I wasn't able to shake a certain ambivalence.

I felt bad breaking cups and dishes that were undeniably ugly, but which still had decades' worth of use in them.

In fact, I asked Greutman if I could take an item home intact: a ceramic gingerbread house of the sort that might (and will again) adorn a table at Christmas.

What can I say? I am a softie.

For people who actually have some steam to work off, All the Rage provides a perfect

My early Oscar nomination predictions

Screen

Tor the first time in 87 years, an Oscar awards ceremony will include file include films released over the span of more than a single year.

With this year's show taking place on April 25 and the qualifying period ending on February 28 (as opposed to the usual New Year's Eve cutoff), it will be a historic year at the Oscars no matter what happens at the show.

For the past month or so, we here at the ScreenTime World Headquarters have been talking about - and sometimes writing about — the upcoming Oscar nominations, which are set to be released on March 15. That means that from now until March 15, we get to watch movies and discuss and speculate on who might be nominated. Then from March 15 through April 24, we get to watch the movies we haven't yet seen, discuss them, and attempt to forecast who we think will win.

So, yeah, we don't get much these days in the film world, but we are going to get a proper Oscar season. And, frankly, I couldn't be more excited.

Looking back over all the films released in the last year (not to mention the films that will be released between now and March 14), I gotta say, it hasn't been a bad movie year. This year's Oscars show producer, Steven Soderbergh, has made some key decisions that have influenced studios to release some films to VOD or streaming that they had otherwise planned to shelve until the movie theater industry is running full speed again.

And so, with all that in mind, and with the information we have now, I present to you the much anticipated, historic even (and way-too-early), ScreenTime 2020 Oscar Nomination Predictions:

BEST CINEMATOGRAPHY

Hoyte van Hoytema (Tenet), Joshua James Richards (Nomadland), Erik Messerschmidt (Mank), Sean Bobbitt (Judas and the Black Messiah), and Lukasz Zal (I'm Thinking of Ending Things)

BEST DIRECTOR

Chloe Zhao (Nomadland), Lee Isaac Chung (Minari), David Fincher (Mank), Kelly Reichardt (First Cow), and Aaron Sorkin (The Trial of the Chicago 7)

BEST SUPPORTING ACTRESS

Amanda Seyfried (Mank), Maria Bakalova (Borat Subsequent Moviefilm), Olivia Colman (The Father), Ellen Burstyn (Pieces of a Woman), and Yuh-Jung Youn

BEST SUPPORTING ACTOR

Daniel Kaluuya (Judas and the Black Messiah), Bill Murray (On the Rocks), David Strathairn (Nomadland), Mark Ryland (Trial of the Chicago 7), and Sacha Baron Cohen (Trial of the Chicago 7)

BEST LEAD ACTRESS

Vanessa Kirby (Pieces of a Woman), Frances McDormand (Nomadland), Carey Mulligan (Promising Young Woman), Viola Davis (Ma Rainey's Black Bottom), Zendaya (Malcolm & Marie)

BEST LEAD ACTOR

Riz Ahmed (Sound of Metal), Chadwick Boseman (Ma Rainey's Black Bottom), Anthony Hopkins (The Father), Delroy Lindo (Da 5 Bloodz), and Gary Oldman (Mank)

BEST PICTURE

Promising Young Woman (dir. Emerald Fennell), Nomadland (dir. Chloe Zhao), Soul (dir. Pete Doctor), First Cow (dir. Kelly Reichardt), Sound of Metal (dir. Darius Marder), Mank (dir. David Fincher), The Trial of the Chicago 7 (dir. Aaron Sorkin), Da 5 Bloodz (dir. Spike Lee), Never Rarely Sometimes Always (dir. Eliza Hittman), and Tenet (dir. Christopher Nolan).

Look at those ten films listed above. Wow! Not a bad crop of films at all. Now get on with it and start watching all these movies.

Timberlake sinks in tired melodrama

That does Justin Timberlake want? Not yet 40 years old, the pop icon has sold tens of millions of albums in his solo music career alone, resulting in ten Grammy Awards, and performed at two Super Bowl halftime shows, one of which gave birth to the dreadful phrase "wardrobe malfunction."

Though he's dabbled in the movie industry throughout the years with films like The Social Network and the Trolls franchise, his latest project

BRENT LEUTHOLD

Palmer would suggest that he wants to be taken seriously as a dramatic leading man. Since a future Tony Award seems inevitable given his undeniable music talent, it makes sense that he would want to refine his acting chops to secure EGOT status.

But starring in hoary pablum like this latest offering from Apple TV+ won't do his career or his Oscar aspirations any favors.

Timberlake stars as Eddie Palmer, a soft-spoken Southern gentleman who's just been released from prison after a 12-year stint for attempted murder. He returns to the rural Louisiana home of his grandmother Vivian (June Squibb), who takes him in on the condition that he finds a job and joins her for church every Sunday.

After finding out just how difficult it is for convicted felons to land even a minimum wage gig, he's eventually hired as a janitor for the local elementary school, where he meets a charming young teacher named Maggie (Alisha Wainwright). One of her students Sam (Ryder Allen) is also taken in by Vivian after being abandoned by his delinquent mother Shelley (Juno Temple), which causes Palmer and Sam to strike up an unlikely friendship with one another.

Beyond Timberlake's apparent desire to win respect within the acting community, it's difficult to know what drew anyone to make Palmer. Director Fisher Stevens is best known for his work on socially-conscious, naturebased documentaries like the Oscar-winner The Cove and Before the Flood, but his narrative instincts on display here are about as pedestrian as it gets.

"Ex-con mentors troubled youth" isn't exactly the most promising starting point, but I was hoping that Stevens would be able to add some sort of depth or nuance as the story progressed. Not only does he refuse to have an original take on this tired material, but he leans into nearly every cliche that we've come to associate with this overwrought brand of melodrama that's barely above the level of a Hallmark movie.

The script by Cheryl Guerriero is packed with characters so one-dimensional that they more closely resemble a line-up from a geometry textbook rather than an assemblage of people who actually exist in the real world. It evokes a simplistic and stereotypical view of Southern culture that's so obvious and unsophisticated that it's borderline insulting.

This is one of those movies that seems to have been created by pulling from a hat filled with the most trite scenes imaginable, from a pack of good ol' boys drunkenly regaling each other with stories from their glory

Justin Timberlake and Ryder Allen star in Palmer.

Rated R for language, some sexual content/nudity, and brief violence

1 hour 50 minutes

Streaming on Apple TV+ starting Jan. 29

days to a tear-filled custody hearing where the judge demands order from the courtroom. I can't readily recall a screenplay more complacent and safe than the one that Guerriero offers here.

In the midst of a streaming war that gets more competitive every year, Apple TV+ is still in the relatively early phases of developing their original content. Though they have yet to create a series that makes their service indispensable, they've moved the meter a bit with offerings like Servant and Ted Lasso. From the film side of things, their partnership with A24 vielded successes last year like On The Rocks and Boys State and promises more winners in the future.

Beyond those, their movies have ranged greatly in terms of quality and style, which makes it difficult to tell what kind of brand they're trying to establish. Regardless of what the future holds for the emerging streaming service, they'll need to do better than utterly bland fare like Palmer to command the attention of couchbound audiences.

ALSO NEW TO STREAMING THIS WEEKEND

Arriving on HBO Max is The Little Things, a crime thriller starring Denzel Washington and Rami Malek about a feud between a deputy and a detective during the investigation of a serial killer in 1980s California.

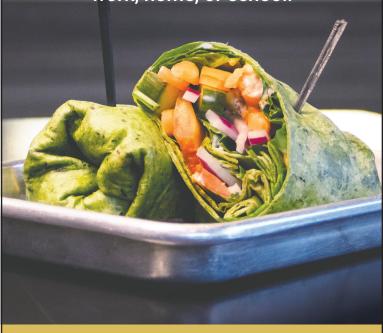

Debuting on Netflix is The Dig, a period drama starring Carey Mulligan and Ralph Fiennes about an archeologist who discovers and begins excavating the Sutton Hoo burial site in 1930s England.

Out for digital rental is Supernova, a romantic drama starring Colin Firth and Stanley Stucci about a pair of longtime partners who reunite with friends and family after one of them is diagnosed with early onset dementia.
