Warsaw salt cave gives rustic 'flavor' to relaxation

Columnist is 'shaken' by perceived health benefits

y doctor had just told me to cut back on salt. And here I was about to wallow in it.

But I am nothing if not a daredevil. Which is to say, I am nothing if not the sort of person who thinks visiting a salt cave makes him a daredevil.

Since I hit middle age, I have tried to get out of my comfort zone more. But salt is firmly ensconced in my comfort zone.

But the salt you sprinkle on already salty foods because aging seems to have neutralized your taste buds has nothing to do with salt cave therapy.

GETTING SALTY

What? You've never heard of salt cave therapy? Have you been living in a cave? A saltless cave?

I'll tell you this: A salt cave is not the same thing as a salt room. There are a number of so-called salt caves in Indiana that are really more like salt rooms.

For the real deal, you need to travel to Warsaw and visit Himalayan Salts & Scents.

Salt cave therapy was allegedly invented by a 19th century Polish doctor who noticed that salt miners didn't suffer the same respiratory problems as other sorts of miners, which made those other sorts of miners insanely jealous. Luckily, they were too winded to seek revenge.

Thanks in part to that Polish doctor, the accidental act of breathing in fine salt particles is now purposefully called dry salt therapy or halotherapy. You may feel some skepticism about its efficacy, but chances are you are a firm believer in wet salt therapy, even if you aren't aware of it. Who among us has not gargled with salt water, soaked in a salt bath or used a salty nasal rinse?

Who, I ask you?

Sorry, I got carried away.

 $Himalayan\,Salts\,\&\,Scents\,is\,your\,one\text{-stop}\,shop\,for\,everything\,having\,to\,do\,with\,therapeutic\,salt.$

Therapeutic salt is as different from table salt as brie is from Cheez Whiz. Pink Himalayan salt has beneficial minerals that table salt has been cruelly robbed of.

Luckily, table salt is too inanimate to seek revenge.

SHAKEN AND STIRRED

Peg Custer, the owner of Himalayan Salts & Scents, is also a therapeutic salt wholesaler. She sells salt to people who want to sell salt.

To misquote the late Sy Sperling, Custer is not just company president; she is also a client.

Years ago, Custer knew a friend who carried smooth orbs of pink Himalayan salt in her pockets to treat hip pain.

"I thought she was cuckoo," Custer confessed. Confessed to me, not to the friend.

In time, Custer, who was then a bookseller, started experiencing her own hip pain caused by the sort of arduous tasks that common are to the profession of bookselling: putting books in boxes, lifting the boxes, lifting large reference books about the history of boxes, lifting boxes full of large reference books about the histories of boxes and large reference books, etc.

In desperation, she bought smooth orbs of pink salt to carry in her pockets. And they worked.

The benefits of pink Himalayan salt go beyond breathing it in. Himalayan salt devotees believe it emits negative ions, especially when heated.

If you are as old as the same hills that I am as old as, you probably remember the old Harold Arlen standard that went, "You've got to ac-CENT-chu-ate the positive and eliminate the negative."

That's good advice for life, but it's not good advice for ions.

Negative ions are the accentuate-able ions. Only a Negative Nelly would doubt it. They are molecules charged with electricity. And there is compelling research to suggest that they convey real health benefits although perhaps not as many benefits as some devotees claim.

So I was forced to conclude that doing almost anything with salt is good for you as long as it doesn't involve swallowing a lot of it.

REASON FOR THE SEASONING

What makes Custer's cave unique is that it was made to resemble a natural salt cave. Without the mining.

Custer's cave has four thousand pounds of salt in it. The walls are made of salt. Some of the furniture is made of salt. There is crushed salt in the ceiling and on the floor. There is a bed made of salt.

There are salt domes to place your feet on.

Not only does it resemble a natural salt cave, it also evokes an oceanside resort and an Old West set on a Hollywood studio backlot.

All these seemingly disparate elements combine to create a very pleasant place to be for an

There are high-end deck chairs, toys for kiddos, and a salt "beach" to feel between your toes.

And let me tell you about that bed: You might think a bed made of crushed pink salt would be uncomfortable.

But the minute you lie down on it, you start thinking about launching a bedding company to compete with Purple. I'm calling mine Pink.

If you go with a group of people, you will probably fight them for access to the bed. Luckily, the salt bed seems like it would be a good place to convalesce from injuries.

So what's my final verdict? After an hour in the salt cave, I not only was breathing better but I was emboric

I am being serious here. All my middle-aged ailments were quieted, and I felt giddy for hours afterward.

I believe the salt cave works exactly as advertised.

But if you must, take that with a grain of salt.

Allman Betts Band ready to rock out local drive-in Southern country rock satisfies its fan base

BY STEVE PENHOLLOW

WHATZUP FEATURES WRITER

Devon Allman was on the road a year or so ago with the Allman Betts Band when every-

From the vantage point of a tour bus, the COVID-19 must have seemed especially apocalyptic: gigs in distant cities winking out one

"I woke up to my tour manager shaking me awake, saying, 'Hey, you were right. Everything's canceled," Allman said in a phone interview with Whatzup.

Having no other option, Allman went home to St. Louis.

He stayed busy during the lockdown and the long suspension of live music. He recorded an instrumental album, signed a new artist to his label, Create Records, and traveled to places where travelers were welcomed.

Eventually, he and Duane Betts got on the drive-in theater circuit that materialized after more traditional music venues were shut

The Allman Betts Band will perform at the 13-24 Drive-In in Wabash on April 22.

DRIVE-INS TO THE RESCUE

The 13-24 Drive-In is offering an ambitious slate of live music this spring: Chris Janson on April 24, Casting Crowns on May 7, Here Come the Mummies on May 20, Travis Tritt on May 21, and FireHouse with Kip Winger on May 22.

Last year, the 13-24 Drive-In and other drive-in theaters in Indiana and Ohio were beacons during a dark time. They offered live-by-satellite concerts and live-in-the-flesh concerts to people whose entertainment options were severely limited.

These concerts provided a valuable community service and brought regional attention to Wabash.

What they weren't for the drive-in was lucrative.

"Financially, it was pretty much a wash for us," said Tod Minnich, president and CEO of the Honeywell Foundation.

The Honeywell Foundation manages the theater for its owner, Inguard Insurance of Wabash.

Overcoming barriers to providing entertainment is part of the Honeywell Foundation's mission, Minnich said, so the concerts were beneficial and satisfying on that level.

Allman said drive-in shows really aren't all that different from other sorts of outdoor

"It's really the same dynamic," he said. "Here's the band. Here's the people. Let's have

The biggest difference may be that people honk their horns instead of clapping their hands, Allman said.

ALLMAN IN THE FAMILY

Devon Allman is the son of the late Gregg Allman and Duane Betts is the son of the still-kicking Dickey Betts.

The elder Allman and elder Betts were bandmates in the Allman Brothers Band.

Devon Allman didn't start getting to know his dad until his late teens. He met Duane Betts on the Allman Brothers tour bus.

Both sons enjoyed long and robust music careers before they started discussing the possibility of joining forces.

Allman said he never felt any pressure to make music that sounds like the music his dad made.

"You're always gonna have people... it's like the Star Wars movies, perfect example," he said. "You'll always have those diehards who say, 'Nothing's better than the original three Star Wars movies.' And then you're gonna have another batch of people who say, 'I'm just glad to have more Star Wars, whatever it is.'

MORE ON THE WEB

Use your phone's camera to scan the QR code and watch The Allman Betts Band's video for their single, "Airboats & Cocaine," and listen to the band on Spotify.

"We know where we come from," Allman said. "I don't think we carry pressure with that. I have ten records under my belt. I have earned a place where I can do what I want to do. I don't have to do anything I don't want to do."

Discovering "new sounds and new melodies" is one of the primary joys of music-making for Allman.

"And, hey, if one of those new melodies and sounds reminds you of my dad, man, that's great," he said. "And if it reminds you of the Rolling Stones, that's great, too."

NO SOPHOMORE SLUMP

Last summer, the band decided to go ahead with the release of its second album, Bless Your Heart, even though the pandemic had forced the postponement of so much new entertainment.

Bless Your Heart earned universally positive reviews.

"When you hear the first album, you're hearing the birth of the band," Allman said. "I think the first album is a postcard that says, 'Hey. Here we are. We're figuring this out."

Allman describes the second album as "a long love letter."

"It's everyone having a love affair with being in this band," he said. "It's a more detailed thing. It goes deeper down the rabbit hole."

Looking ahead, Allman said he doesn't know when things will go back to normal and what that will look like. In the meantime, he just plans to do what he's always done.

"You want to keep the audience engaged," he said. "If they already love you, don't give them a reason not to. Give them reasons to fall more deeply in love with you.

"But you also have to write songs for yourself," Allman said. "They have to have merit. They have to have meaning. They have to be real. I think if you just keep your head down and play your next batch of songs with all the sincerity that you can, it'll lead you in the right direction."

For Minnich, who not only oversees the drive-in but also the Honeywell Center and the Eagles Theatre, a moment of truth is coming when all the creativity in the world won't be enough to forestall disaster.

"We need business back in the fall," he said. "We need those indoor shows. We need those first-run films. We need to be at 100 percent capacity."

Crooked Lake whets your appetite with music fest

The Crooked Lake Sandbar Music Festival has announced the musical acts that will be hitting the stage at this year's event. The festival is celebrating its eighth year on Friday and Saturday, July 23 and 24, with a local and regional lineup that will be sure to satisfy all.

Beginning at 3 p.m. on Friday, singer-songwriter Julia James takes the stage along with the party band Rekt. On Saturday, music begins at 11 a.m. with performances by The Band

Out and About NICK BRAUN

Brother, The Brothers Footman, TBC-The Band Cheyenne, and Clayton Anderson.

The event will be hosted by DJ Double K and WANE 15's Natalie Clydesdale. All together, the fun-filled family event benefits local charities like the Community Humane Shelter of Steuben County. So it's more than just a party, it's for a cause.

CARNEVIL FESTIVAL OF METAL

The Muse on Main is opening its doors to a two-day music festival on Friday and Saturday, April 16 and 17, starting at 5 p.m. CarnEvil is a demonic carnival experience that is themed around horror and metal.

There will be side show acts, costumes, and 20 metal bands including Cremated Souls, Voice of Sylas, Pharohound, Slokill, Sleep Tight, Salem's Childe, Hidden Dagger, and Filth Spewer.

If you have friends traveling in for CarnEvil, make sure to tell them that both downtown Courtyard and Hampton have special rates for the event. Go to themuseonmain.com for details and tickets.

There will be an after party across the street at The Ruin on Saturday beginning around 9 p.m. with even more live music by Rattlesnake Mafia, Slokill, 9th Circle Symphony, Porn Pastor, and Split the Sea.

THE SPIRIT OF THE '80s

Speaking of The Ruin, they are set to host glam rockers Wildstreet on Wednesday, April 21, when they bring their "Kings of the World Tour" to town.

These New Yorkers are all about sing-along choruses, blazing guitar solos, and powerful melodies, reminiscent of '80s arena rock.

Since releasing their self-titled debut album in 2009, the band has performed at major festivals such as Rocklahoma, SXSW, and M3 Rock Festival. They even made an appearance on The Tonight Show with Jimmy Fallon. This all-ages show starts at 8 p.m. with local openers Namen Namen and Jonah Leatherman. There will be a $15 cover at the door.

PIERE'S BRINGS THE LOCAL ROCK

Have you checked out the newly reopened Piere's yet? With an array of shows on their calendar, you certainly have opportunities to do so.

One show just announced will feature a handful of local rock/metal acts taking the stage on Friday, April 23, at 7 p.m.

The haymaker of a lineup includes Blood from a Stone, Static Fly, Moments After, and Driven Enemy. General admission tickets are $5, reserved balcony $10, and premium reserved balcony $15. Those can be purchased via Etix.com.

Out and About covers Northeast Indiana's most interesting music and arts events. Send your announcements to info@whatzup.com.

Popular farmers market finds new outdoor home s farmers markets begin to open for the season, there's a big change for one of the most popular stands. After having been indoors at Parkview Field all winter, Fort Wayne's Farmers Market heads outdoors this spring to a new location at McCulloch Park on Broadway near the Electric Works facility.

Starting May 15, the market will offer its usual mix of fresh produce, flowers, plants, and other treats MICHELE DEVINNEY while being able to spread out a bit more. In fact, there's room for entertainment now, and the market's website (ftwaynesfarmersmarket.com) has a call out for musicians and entertainers who would like to be part of the action this spring and summer. The market hours will continue to be 9 a.m.-1 p.m. as they continue to expand its offerings.

COUNTRY HERITAGE UNCORKS MUSIC

Mogwai

As the Love Continues

Mogwai are one of the OG post-rock bands. Their blend of quiet interludes that swell into cascades of momentous noise are the hallmarks of post-rock. Far more than just a genre creator, they bounce around in noise rock, art rock, film scores, and post-punk as well.

But what this Scottish band has bestowed on our ears more than anything is the importance of dynamics. Their songs feature building momentum and slow-churning emotional release. The mix of electronics, distortion, dissonance, and melody over the course of 25 years and ten albums has made for an engaging discography.

The band's tenth album, As the Love Continues, is a dynamic album that combines everything that has come before with precision and thoughtful composition. This is yet another hour of grand musical annihilation.

"Here We, Here We, Here We Go On Forever," on first listen, feels the most evolved in terms of sonic expansion. Electronic rhythm, synth structures, and delicate keys intermingle with almost soulful guitar lines. While not a "mellow" sound, this track feels almost melancholic even in the crunchiest of guitar parts. That's the magic of Mogwai. Those clean guitar leads could've been played by the late great Stevie Ray Vaughan.

They follow that up with the electronic blips and bleeps of "Dry Fantasy," a coming together of ambient sounds, '80s electro pop, and Berlin School magic.

Elsewhere, "Drive the Nail" has a vast feel to it, as if Mogwai set up shop in West Texas and had a window view of miles of monochrome horizon and endless sky. If Ry Cooder ever made a postrock album, I'd imagine it would sound like this. There are even touches of My Bloody Valentine's wall of noise here, giving the track a healthy dose of ear-ringing bliss.

From "Pat Stains" to "Supposedly, We Were Nightmares" to album closer "It's What I Want To Do, Mum," Mogwai lock into both classic and new sounds, making $As\ the\ Love\ Continues\ a\ future\ classic in their canon. — <math>J.\ Hubner$

Loretta Lynn

Still Woman Enough

Earlier this year, 87-year-old Willie Nelson released an album of covers of songs famously sung by Frank Sinatra. It was an unsurprising move from Nelson, who has explored different genres throughout his career and can't be expected to do anything different as he looks back on his musical life.

Equally unsurprising is the new album from 88-year-old Loretta Lynn. Lynn has made her career doing the opposite of exploring, instead focusing on her own mythology from deep within her comfort zone. This collection of new versions of traditional country songs (several of them her own hits) is set on proving Lynn is still who she's always been, even at this late date.

The album's title and opening title track (a new original) make the point right away. Not just a reference to one of Lynn's biggest hits, "Still Woman Enough" is also the title of her 2002 memoir, pointing out that Lynn's been trading on her biography for decades already. We've been served the character of the steel-willed coal miner's daughter for at least a half century, so it's hard to imagine why we need another homage to Lynn's reputation.

That said, Lynn is hardly off her game for most of the album, and she's still a joy to listen to. On a version of her 1971 hit "One's on the Way," Lynn has no problem keeping up with her muchyounger duet partner, Margo Price.

A version of "You Ain't Woman Enough," however, is much less interested in the idea of baton-passing. Here Lynn teams up with Tanya Tucker for a double dose of '70s nostalgia that, despite Tucker's involvement, shows that Lynn is not yet ready to give up the image she's spent so long constructing. — Evan Gillespie

Joel Hoekstra's 13

Running Games

You might not know the name, but Joel Hoekstra is one of the current guitarists for Whitesnake and Trans-Siberian Orchestra, as well as part of Cher's band when she is on the road. Hoekstra was also a member of Night Ranger for several years not too long ago.

Running Games is the second album from Hoekstra's solo project Joel Hoekstra's 13. The first album featured several guest singers, making it more of an all-star album. Running Games is more cohesive as Hoekstra uses the fantastic voice of Russell Allen throughout. The rest of the band isn't too bad either with Vinny Appice, formerly of Black Sabbath and Dio, on drums; former Blue Murder bassist Tony Franklin on the low end; and former Dream Theater keyboardist Derek Sherinian adding the fifth element.

In a press release about the album, Hoekstra described his solo music as "Dio-ish at its heaviest and Foreigner-ish at its lightest." But there's more to it than that. There are a couple of tunes, "Fantasy" and "Finish Line," that see the guitarist wearing his Whitesnake hat proudly, while "Cried Enough For You" is reminiscent of TSO.

There are also plenty of times where you hear Hoekstra spreading his wings and developing his own style. Though Hoekstra wrote the songs here, he doesn't try to overshadow the rest of the band, choosing mostly to be content as one of the driving forces behind the songs rather than the star. The best moments come when Hoekstra and Sherinian trade licks, creating memorable moments in multiple songs. "Take What's Mine,"

King Kurt

Ooh Wallah Wallah (1983)

This is one of those moments that freezes my music history. I never got to see this band, but the novelty of their gigs is legendary. The music was channeled through producer Dave Edmunds and his trademark rockabilly sphere of influence. This was the only release from this band that I owned (on cassette), but it got some serious wear during my first year at college.

The album opens with "Zulu Beat," a heavy, percussion-based tune that blends Ska with punk. It sounds very early '80s but still has sensibility almost 40 years later. "Destination Zulu Land" has the same rockabilly vibe and has the similar angst as The Damned, yet it has a unique commercial appeal about it. "Bo Diddly Goes East" also carries the punk torch, but the band has a tighter sound and the production is higher quality. "Wreck-a-Party Rock" is more of a psychabilly sound, but the guitars and backing harmonies make this one of the better party songs on the album that you could really crank up. They do a raucous cover of the 1948 western fable "Ghost Riders in The Sky." It practically sounds like a version Primus or The Butthole Surfers would have given us toward the end of the decade. And "Lonesome Train" is punkabilly that struts around for just over two minutes. They also cover "Mack the Knife" with a groovy horn and an energy that can be described as do-woop-meets-jazzmeets-punk. The record crawls to a close with the '50s sounding punk rocker in "Do The Rat."

The band was very talented, and the record had Edmunds' touch all over it. I would have loved to have seen them live, but their small catalog is still good enough to experience the uniqueness of this group. — Dennis Donahue the penultimate track, pulls everything together, showing off the talents of each member magnificently, while the somber title track takes us out in style. The whole disc is solid from top to bottom, but you'll want to start by streaming "Take What's Mine," "How Do You," and "Heart Attack" to get an idea of what we are working with.

2020 was an awful year in a lot of ways, but we are seeing great music released in 2021 because of it. It's fun to see what can happen when a bunch of artists have a lot of time on their hands. This is another one to add to the list of impressive releases so far this year, a year that is only about a quarter of the way done. — Chris Hupe

n interesting pairing of forces has shown up on the fall touring schedule as Sammy Hagar and The Circle have announced dates with special guests Mammoth WVH. The WVH stands for Wolfgang Van Halen, the son of late guitarist Eddie Van Halen, whom Hagar used to be joined with in a band you might have heard of called Van Halen.

Road Notes CHRIS HUPE

album Lockdown 2020 while Mammoth WVH will release their debut on June 11.

Is there a chance the two will play some Van Halen tunes together? It's highly likely and something you are going want to see if you were or are a fan of that band.

The tour stops at Hollywood Casino Amphitheatre in Chicago on Oct. 2, the Music Center in Dayton on Oct. 16, and the Four Winds Casino in New Buffalo, Mich., on Oct. 22. There are plenty of dates still available and we will keep you posted as shows are added.

IMPALA MAKING AN IMPACT

Tame Impala have announced that they have solidified dates for their rescheduled 2020 tour.

The tour is in support of the band's newest album, The Slow Rush, which came out in February 2020 and yielded a Top 10 Rock single in "Is It True."

The tour kicks off in late July but doesn't get around to our region until it hits Little Caesars Arena in Detroit on Oct. 5 and the United Center in Chicago on Oct. 7. Perfume Genius will open the shows.

say they are pretty darn good.

The band is gearing up for a long 2021 tour that kicks off in May and finds its way to several cities in our region this summer. The tour stops in Cleveland on July 30, Dayton on July 31, Indianapolis on Aug. 1, Cincinnati on Aug. 7-8, South Bend on Aug. 10, Detroit on Aug. 11, Columbus on Aug. 13, Chicago on Aug. 14, and Toledo on Aug. 16.

COUNTRY IN HAMILTON

Double H Farms in Hamilton will host John Michel Montgomery on June 12.

The country singer has had more than 30 singles on the Billboard Country charts with seven reaching No. 1. You might remember his version of All-4-One's "I Swear" was one of the top country songs of the '90s along with "Sold" and "I Can Love You Like That." Montgomery has ten studio albums worth of material in all, but seems to be due for some new songs as his last album was released way back in 2008.

Mason Dixon Line will open.

Road Notes covers concerts within driving distance of Northeast Indiana. Send your news items to info@whatzup.com.

Answer key on page 14

Let's hear it for big, dumb blockbusters

elp, it's happening. People are slowly starting to go to the movies again. This past weekend came in at $44 million. And no, that doesn't sound like much but, considering this time last month the weekend box office was under $8 million, I think it's safe to say that we're at the beginning of the theater industry's attempt at recovery.

Screen Time GREG W. LOCKE

This past weekend saw the release of Godzilla vs. Kong, which took in over $32 million over the weekend and has already sold $285 million worldwide. Whoa. I hear it's a silly, stupid, fun, even gorgeous film that's very much worth seeing on a huge screen in a loud room. I believe it, and I can't lie, I love a big, loud, cheesy, epic, end-of-the-world blockbuster as much as anyone.

So yeah, I'll probably go see Godzilla vs. Kong at some point. In the theater. And it'll probably be pretty fun after a year of watching movies quietly on the TV in my apartment.

Until I do start hitting the theaters again, I'm going to binge on big, dumb summer blockbusters of the past. And yep! You guessed here! Here it is, with no commentary, my Top 10:

10. (tie) Men In Black (dir. Barry Sonnenfeld)

10. (tie) The Rock (dir. Michael Bay)

10. (tie) Spider-Man 2 (dir. Sam Raimi)

9. Jurassic Park (dir. Steven Spielberg)

8. Armageddon (dir. Michael Bay)

7. Back to the Future (dir. Robert Zemeckis)

6. Con Air (dir. Simon West)

5. Jaws (dir. Steven Spielberg)

4. Ghostbusters (dir. Ivan Reitman)

3. The Dark Knight (dir. Christopher Nolan)

2. Die Hard with a Vengeance (dir. John McTiernan)

1. Terminator 2: Judgement Day (dir. James Cameron)

Here's hoping we get at least one movie of this degree of entertainment quality sometime this summer. I would love to see, say, "The Next Con Air" up on the big screen some hot summer afternoon. Just something big, silly, not-serious, loud, wild, funny, and fun.

Looking forward, here's what we can likely expect this summer: Neil Burger's very promising Voyagers (April 9); the maybe somehow-fun Mortal Kombat (April 23); Guy Ritchie's latest Jason Statham vehicle, Wrath of Man (May 7); Spiral (May 14); A Quiet Place Part II (May 28); Cruella (May 28); Sylvester Stallone superhero flick

Michelle Rodriguez and Vin Diesel star in F9, the next movie in the Fast and Furious franchise.

Samaritan (June 4): The Hitman's Wife's Bodyauard (June 16); Fast and Furious sequel F9, directed by Justin Lin (June 25); Top Gun: Maverick (July 2); Marvel flick Black Widow (July 9); Space Jam: A New Legacy (July 16); Cinderella (July 16); Jungle Cruise (July 30); Tom McCarthy's highlight anticiapted Stillwater (July 30); The Suicide Squad (Aug. 6); Hotel Transylvania 4 (Aug. 6); Free Guy (Aug. 13); Candyman (Aug. 27); and Jackass 4 (Sept. 3).

I can get excited about five of those films — can you guess which ones? That being said, none of them have me feeling too excited. I'll be at Maverick on release day if the buzz is good; same goes for Stillwater. But it's not a great collection of prospects in my opinion.

At this point I'd guess that F9 is the biggest hit of 2021, with Top Gun: Maverick taking the No. 2 spot. I could also see the studios adding more releases in July and August if the weekend grosses keep growing. Something tells me we might get the new Wes Anderson movie sooner than later. Fingers crossed.

Monster mashup bloated with way too much filler tarting in 2014 with a boots-onthe-ground reboot of Godzilla, Legendary's MonsterVerse now culminates with Godzilla vs. Kong, an intermittently fun slugfest that embraces the schlock of past creature features but still has too much thickheaded filler to recommend.

The franchise's previous entry, Godzilla: King of the Monsters, was the kind of wall-to-wall melee that I wanted from this universe, packed with all sorts of mythical baddies for the oversized lizard to tango with. After only one standalone movie to his name, Kong: Skull Island in 2017, Kong deserved another sequel to bridge the gap between that film's 1970s setting and present day. Instead, director Adam Wingard hastily shoehorns in decades of dense exposition just so we can see the two beasts duke it out.

> But the brawl simply doesn't feel earned within this fictional cinematic world.

We catch up with the titular oversized gorilla as he appears to be living out his days on his home of Skull Island until we find that he's actually residing inside a dome made to resemble the magical isle. It turns out Kong is actually being protected by the tech company Monarch from Godzilla, who laid waste to many a titan in the events of King of the Monsters and would have no compunction about taking Kong out of the picture as well.

When Godzilla attacks the headquarters of Apex Cybernetics, another tech company looking to control the monsters, its founder Walter Simmons (Demián Bichir) seeks out theoretical geologist Dr. Nathan Lind (Alexander Skarsgård) to journey to the center of the Hollow Earth for solutions to their colossal calamity.

It's often said that people don't go into these types of movies to fully invest in the human characters, since the monsters are so obviously the main attraction and the people below them are often casualties in the big showdowns anyway. For a movie that shouldn't care much about them, Godzilla vs. Kong spends far too much time setting them up.

The most compelling by a mile are those played by Rebecca Hall and Kaylee Hottle, the former playing a Jane Goodall-type linguist and the latter her adopted daughter who lived with Kong on his native island. These should have been the two main characters in a Kong standalone film, who could have spent the entire movie assimilating the ape to his new surroundings, perhaps similarly to the way the MCU did with Captain America in 2014's The Winter Soldier.

But of course Warner Bros., perpetually playing catch-up to Disney, rushed this franchise along too quickly and doesn't have any time to set up Kong as his own entity. Instead, we have to spend time with King of the Monsters characters reprised by Millie Bobby Brown and Kyle Chandler, who are here to consider Godzilla's motives and defend him against the shady Apex corporation. Along on that B-plot are Hunt for the Wilderpeople standout Julian Dennison and the always welcome Brian Tyree Henry, playing a conspiratorial podcaster who manages a few funny lines along the way. If that wasn't enough, we also get an Apex operative played by the stunning Eiza González, who oversees Skarsgård and Hall in their The Core-like mission with Kong to the

If you don't care about any of this and just want to see some cool fights, then the film at least delivers on that front but really only on two occasions. The first big set piece, where Kong and Godzilla fight at sea atop aircraft carriers, features spectacular daytime CGI and makes interesting use of its unconventional setting.

The final showdown, comprising most of the film's final act, shows Wingard doubling (tripling?) down on the garish neon aesthetic of his 2014 indie The Guest as the titular titans pick off the brightly-lit Hong Kong skyline building by building.

Godzilla vs. Kong technically makes good on its title but would have been much more satisfying had the producers taken their time to build up the stakes and set up the disparities between the competing colossuses.

NEW MOVIES COMING THIS WEEKEND

Streaming on Netflix is Thunder Force, a superhero comedy starring Melissa McCarthy and Octavia Spencer about two estranged childhood best friends who reunite after one devises a treatment that gives them superpowers to protect their city.

Opening in theaters is Voyagers, a sci-fi drama starring Tye Sheridan and Lily-Rose Depp about a crew of astronauts who succumb to paranoia and madness while on a multi-generational space mission.

Available to rent on demand is Held, a horror thriller starring Jill Awbrey and Bart Johnson about a married couple on vacation who is terrorized by an unseen force controlling their smart home.
