Marshall Tucker Band adds new fans

Catalog of songs funding way onto reality shows; visiting The Clyde, Nov. 11

BY L. KENT WOLGAMOTT

SPECIAL TO WHATZUP

The Marshall Tucker Band had their hits in the 1970s. But when singer Doug Gray looks out at the audiences these days, he doesn't see a room full of those who grew up on those songs. He sees a lot of people who were not event born when "Can't You See," "Fire on the Mountain," and "Heard It in a Love Song" were all over the radio.

"We didn't start out knowing these songs would be a hit, that these songs would be played 8 million times on the radio or somewhere," Gray said in a phone interview. "'Heard It in a Love Song' is catching up to 'Can't You See,' and 'Fire on the Mountain' is in there and they keep going up.

"It's because of the young people and all the stuff that's out there, in movies, on Netflix," he added. "They hear a song, look up Marshall Tucker Band, they hit click and they download that song. It's made life simple for them, and it's not hurting our pocketbook at all."

It's also because the MTB classics have become staples on the TV singing contest shows.

"I'm guilty of watching The Voice. I'm guilty of watching American Idol," Gray said. "I'm 75, but my girlfriend is 20 years younger. She'll see me after watching and say, 'You've got tears coming out of your eyes.' It's because I just heard a 16-year-old girl who's going to be a star. I can feel it right now, just like Elvis did. And she did one of our songs.

"When they do 'Can't You See' in front of 8, 9 million people, I always reach out to them. I wish them good luck and all of that," he said.

You'll get a chance to hear those hits and more from Gray when The Marshall Tucker Band performs at The Clyde Theatre on Saturday, Nov. 11.

ECLECTIC TASTES

Gray was one of six guys who got together in Spartanburg, South Carolina, in 1972 and borrowed the name of a blind piano tuner for a band moniker.

Unintentionally, the band came up with a distinctive brand of music that got played on rock and progressive country stations.

"We did it without knowing there was any difference between country, rock n' roll, rhythm and blues, or jazz," Gray said. "We put all of those together without knowing what the heck we were doing. We even got invited to jazz festivals.

"Toy (Caldwell) and Tommy (Caldwell) were the country influences in the group. Doug, that would be myself, and George (McCorkle) were the R&B players. Jerry (Eubanks) was the flautist: He played sax in the high school band, too. You bring all that together and it's like the soup your mama made on Sundays when she cleaned out the refrigerator. You drop everything into the pot and out comes The Marshall Tucker Band."

Toy Caldwell was the band's primary songwriter and lead guitarist. His brother played bass, McCorkle played rhythm guitar, Paul Riddle was the drummer and Eubanks played everything else — keyboards, saxophone, and flute.

Signed to Capricorn Records in 1973, the band released their self-titled debut album, toured with label mates The Allman Brothers Band, and put out the first of their three signature songs, "Can't You See." Two years later came "Fire on the Mountain," and in 1977, "Heard It in a Love Song."

KEEPING THE BAND GOING

For four decades, The Marshall Tucker Band has continued to tour, with the new audience helping keep them on the road about 100 nights in a year. And the group isn't too far off of reaching that level of activity this year, the 50th anniversary of the band's debut album.

"Here's a band that hasn't really done anything but play," Gray said. "That's what The Marshall Tucker Band is about. If you want to know what the band's about in actuality, that's it. Even from the beginning, we just wanted to go out and play."

Gray is the only remaining original member. Tommy Caldwell died in an auto accident in 1980. Four years later, Toy Caldwell, McCorkle, and Riddle retired, leaving Eubanks and Gray running the band until Eubanks retired in 1996.

"Tommy died in 1980 in a car wreck, but before that, in 1971, we had an attorney draw up an agreement. We all had first right of refusal about everything with the band, everything was split equally by six," Gray said. "Two or three shares I bought up when guys got tired of it and wanted to get off the road. That's how I ended up with The Marshall Tucker Band.

"Luckily, I can still sing and I have some other great players in the band. People will ask me how the new band is working out. They've been in the band for 25 years. The same band has been together for 25 years. The old band was together for eight years."

PLAYING TO THEIR CORE

Of late, the band have regularly played the Grand Ole Opry, CMA Fan Fest, and the Stage-coach Festival, the country version of the Coachella festival — it only took 40 years for the country music industry to figure out the band had country songs, all the way back to the first album.

The group these days typically plays clubs, theaters, casinos — venues that Gray said are perfect for his band: small enough that he'll know just what the MTB is in for before he walks in the door.

"When the bus pulls up, I see how many pickups are in the parking lot. That way I know we're going to have a good time," Gray said. "I don't want to see too many vans. Those are the moms bringing the kids to see us for the first time. Our biggest, largest drawing audience is 18-37 now. We love playing for them. There's nothing better for me than putting that microphone out in the audience and having them sing 'Can't You See' and 'Fire on the Mountain' or some of the more obscure songs."

Bastardane working to make name for themselves

Son of Metallica leader sees benefits, downfalls; at Brass Rail on Nov. 12

BY CHRIS HUPE

WHATZUP FEATURES WRITER

The Brass Rail has long been a dive bar where you can check out live local music, national bands with niche audiences, and those on the rise.

Bastardane out of Savannah, Georgia, falls into the latter category and are set to perform there Sunday, Nov. 12, as part of their Basanus Tour, which also features indie rock duo Fury in Few and experimental rock quartet Klept.

FORGING THEIR OWN PATH

While Bastardane may not be a household name, you may be familiar with drummer Castor Hetfield's dad. If that surname sounds familiar, it is because he is the son of Metallica frontman James Hetfield.

Formed in 2019, Bastardane, rounded out by singer/bassist Jake Dallas and guitarist Ethan Sirotzki, released their debut album, Is This Rage?, in 2022. In their review, Revolver called the album "metal-inflected, psychrock," while Noise Pollution said they had a "sludgy sound, full of groove, and powerful riffs," drawing comparisons to Corrosion of Conformity and early Soundgarden rather than thrash bands like Metallica, Testament, and Evodus

"We take a lot of influences from a lot of different genres," Sirotzki told Whatzup in a recent interview. "We understand the COC and Soundgarden comparisons, but there's also some more 'proggy' stuff in there, too. Castor draws some influence from a band called Leprous he really likes, in terms of weird time stuff, and we try to experiment with that while maintaining a level of simplicity and listenability."

The Metallica comparisons are almost inevitable given Castor's last name and Metallica's storied history. However, Castor Hetfield and company seem to have no desire to ride on the coattails of the rock legends.

"It's a bit annoying, to be honest," Hetfield said of the constant comparisons. "We're two different bands. They've made music and we are making music, but we are very different."

All of which begs the question: Is the Metallica connection an advantage or a hindrance?

"I think it's both," Hetfield said. "But, honestly, I don't really think about it too much in daily life because we are trying to write songs and make our own music and do our own thing."

Surely it doesn't hurt to have an industry veteran always available to call when advice is needed, but Hetfield said his dad "usually just stays out of the way unless I ask him questions."

"I think the best thing he is doing for us is letting us figure it out for ourselves," Hetfield said. "I think it's more fun that way, and I think we earn it that way and feel better about it in the end."

LARGE CROWDS VS. ENERGETIC CROWDS

What is clear is that connection has helped Bastardane get a few large gigs they might otherwise not have gotten, including some large festivals and the "takeover" events that were set up around two-night stands Metallica did during their summer tour.

For the most part, though, Bastardane are finding their way at smaller venues.

"The (bigger shows) have been fun," Hetfield said. "The crowd that goes to those shows is not necessarily there to see us, but every one of those shows has been really fun. We see them as a way to win over new fans and to also get really good practice by playing for larger crowds than we are used to."

To their credit, the band seem hellbent on going their own way, on their own terms.

While they have tasted the big time, they are enjoying the ride as a band building their audience one fan at a time.

"I think our enjoyment of the show comes from how much fun the crowd is having, regardless of the size," Sirotzki said.

Hetfield agreed.

"You can have a really big crowd that's just staring at you the whole time and then you can have a crowd of 10 people that's going crazy," he said. "So the size of the crowd and the size of the venue doesn't really matter. It just all depends on whether everyone in the building is having a good time."

EXCEEDING EXPECTATIONS

The band left no doubt they were eager to get back on the road.

As for what the evening at The Rail will hold, Hetfield said to "anticipate confusion, in a really good way," before Dallas jokingly added, "your expectations will not be met."

While that seems like an odd thing to say, Dallas said repeated fan interaction has reinforced his belief in that anticipated outcome.

"That's just usually what people say to me after shows," he said. "It's not because they thought we would be better. It's usually because they had expectations that weren't very high. Then they'll tell me, 'Well, that was pretty strange and, actually, sort of exceeded my expectations."

So, there you have it. The ultimate sales pitch. Expect nothing from Bastardane. Expect nothing and you will not be disappointed. But be prepared to be blown away.

Rocker kicks off tour with free Sweetwater show

Reserve your ticket for Jared James Nichols performance on Nov. 14

BY ANDREW McNAIR

WHATZUP FEATURES WRITER

They tell you in journalism school that you have to remain neutral. With steely-eyed resolve, you must treat your subjects dispassionately to get to the truth. And you should never cheerlead for the people you report on.

Fortunately, I never went to journalism school, because I am rooting for Jared James Nichols.

The blues-infused rocker kicks off his first headlining U.S. tour at Sweetwater Sound on Nov. 14. Tickets for the show are free, but you'll want to rush to sweetwater.com/local/events to reserve your spot before they're gone.

HEADLINING HIS OWN TOUR

I caught up with Nichols by Zoom during a break on his European tour to discuss the tour and more.

"This is my first ever headline tour across America," he said. "And I say that with a lot of excitement, because I played headline shows in the Midwest for years. But this is the first time that we're doing a full-fledged tour, so I couldn't be more excited.

"It's going to be really fun. Fans can expect an epic night of guitar rock n' roll. And what I love is having a headline set. I can really express myself in all the different kind of styles I love. And I'm just really excited. And it's going to be amazing."

Nichols' excitement is contagious. Even in a tedious Zoom interview after a soundcheck thousands of miles away, his energy is impossible to escape. He loves what he's doing, and he can't wait to share it.

NOT TOO PICKY

Nichols is known for his transcendent guitar skill, but other guitarists will quickly note how different his style is from others. He plays without benefit of a pick.

"I was probably 15 when my dad talked me into giving up drums to play the guitar," he said. "But here's the thing: I'm a lefty. So, when I first picked up a guitar, I was holding it like Jimi Hendrix, left-handed. I got a guitar lesson with that first guitar, and the teacher said, 'I'm not going to teach you like that. It's too much work. You have to flip the guitar.' I was OK with that, but I just never got along with the pick. I would try and I would practice, but it felt so natural to have the feel of the fretting hand, the hand on the neck. I wanted to have that with my pick hand, too."

Soon he found that he was in good company. "People would say to me, 'You have to use a pick if you're going to be a real guitarist.' And I just decided that I'm just going to try this," he said. "And then I heard guys like Jeff Beck, Mark Knopfler, Albert King, Derek Trucks... All playing pickless.

"It never occurred to me that it would be a big thing in my style, but it sure has, and it's kind of cool."

BESTOWING WISDOM

Nichols' hard work put him in demand as a young guitarist and he found himself playing with some of his heroes.

"You know, one of the people that I learned the most from was Zakk Wylde, who played with Ozzy Osbourne when I was on tour with him for about three months straight," Nichols said. "Billy Gibbons from ZZ Top taught me the same thing: There's a humility in being a musician and letting things roll off your back. Don't turn molehills into mountains, because it's about having fun. When it's time to hit the stage you gotta play, you gotta be on it.

"But at the end of the day, I'm so fortunate to be playing music. I'm fortunate to be able to do this. I learned from those guys that we're so lucky to have this as our job. Embrace it, and really use it to help and empower the people that are coming to the shows."

Like those that have helped him along the way, Nichols is spreading his joy of music with the younger generations.

"When I'm on the road, I do a meet-andgreet every single day," he said. "I'll be in a music shop, and it is so cool because I see the kids that show up. I'll be jamming a little bit and there'll be 20 or 30 kids there and they're all looking at me like 'Whoa!' And I see them in me, because I know that feeling. And they ask me for advice now.

"The first thing I tell them is have fun. You gotta have fun. Music is all about fun and connecting. It's not a competition; it's not a sport. It's about creativity and expressing yourself.

"And the last thing I tell them is 'Be yourself.' The world doesn't need another Slash (guitarist for Guns N' Roses). The world needs you. Embrace your heroes, embrace the music you love, but don't be afraid to be yourself."

GIBSON, BLACKSTAR TAKE NOTICE

Gibson Guitars named Nichols one of their global ambassadors in 2021. At 34 years old, he's a lot younger than the other global ambassadors that include Slash, Jerry Cantrell of Alice in Chains, Dave Mustaine of Megadeth, and Lzzy Hale of Halestorm.

Being on a list with those names is an honor not lost on him.

"I've been a Gibson Epiphone user since I was 15 years old," he said. "I was born and raised in Wisconsin, right near where Les Paul is from (Waukesha, Wisconsin). I feel like I always had a Les Paul on my shoulder. It's in my blood. So essentially, it's a deep partnership with Gibson, and they've been like my family. It's just been so cool to be recognized by them."

Nichols favorite amp maker also offered him a rare opportunity when Blackstar designed his signature amp.

"It was crazy. I never dreamed that far," he said. "Blackstar approached me and wanted to do an amp. I got to go to their headquarters in England. We walk into this room, and they have a big whiteboard, and it says Jared James Nichols, and they said, 'All right, tell us what you want in an amp.'

"We sat in that room for about 10 hours. We just talked about everything. Tried a ton of stuff. It was almost like a dream come true. I can't even tell you how cool that felt to be able to design my dream. And I still use it to this day."

This might be Nichols' first headlining national tour, but he'll probably be fine without my cheerleading.

"This is my first headline run, but it's going to be the first of many, and I would love as many people there to experience it as possible, because I'm pulling out all the stops," he said. "Fort Wayne always held a really cool place in my heart, so for me to come back and do my first proper headline show... It's gonna be special."

Hedwig and The Angry Inch opens Nov. 3

Three Rivers Music Theatre production of Hedwig and *The Angry Inc*h opens Friday, Nov. 3, at their new location at 416 W. 4th St.

This ground-breaking Obie-winning Off-Broadway smash that took Broadway by storm in its Tony-winning 2014 revival also won multiple awards for its hit film adaptation.

It's the story of "internationally ignored song stylist" Hedwig Schmidt, a fourth-wall smashing East German rock n' roll goddess who also happens to be the victim of a botched sex-change operation.

This outrageous and unexpectedly hilarious story is dazzlingly performed by Hedwig (née Hansel) in the form of a rock gig/stand-up comedy routine backed by the hard-rocking band The Angry Inch.

Using songs and monologues, Hedwig tells her story in a rocking ride, funny, touching, and ultimately inspiring to anyone who has felt life gave them an inch when they deserved a mile.

Papi's Pizza opens on The Landing

fter months of renovations and reimagining, Papi's Pizza has set up shop on The Landing. It's the latest effort from Johnny and Esli Perez, who operate Te Gustó Hospitality.

In July, the former occupant of the space, Alto Grado, announced they were closing their shop at 111 W. Columbia St. to focus on their food truck business. That's when the Perezes, who also operate Mercado next door, swooped in with their vision for the joint.

E I

Off the Eaten Path

Those ideas are alive in a hip, fresh, energized pizzeria with a decidedly 1990s vibe.

They have classic pizza offerings with some new twists. There's Chop'd Clam, Meat Me OTL, Jalapeño Honey, and Bonjourno Blanco. Many of the pizzas are available with gluten-free and vegan options.

They have 12-inch, 18-inch, rectangle pizzas, and single slices.

The menu also features wings, bruschetta, clam dip, subs, salads, and ice cream. Soon they will also have cocktails and beer.

Hours for Papi's are 11 a.m.-10 p.m. Monday-Thursday and 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday-Saturday.

Welch's Ale House becomes Proof Kitchen

A familiar venue has a new name, a look, and owners. Gone is Welch's Ale House, which was formerly known as Calhoun Street Soups, Salads, & Spirits.

In its place is an upscale, casual pub offering a deep selection of beer, wine, and spirits and locally grown and produced products.

About a month ago, Proof Kitchen & Libations, a venture between David Tomaszewski and Will Long, opened at 1915 S. Calhoun St.

Proof hangs their hat on traditional American fare: burgers, sandwiches, salads, and unique evening offerings at a reasonable prices in an elegant environment.

According to an early review, the staff is friendly and inviting with a warm, comfortable atmosphere. Proof's website boasts "fresh ingredients, bold flavors, and an unforgettable experience."

They are open Tuesday-Thursday with lunch from 11 a.m.-2 p.m. and dinner from 4-10 p.m., and Friday and Saturday 11 a.m.-11 p.m.

LC Nature Park celebrates bison

Here's one of your last chances to grab grub from a food truck. And do it with a fresh protein-rich twist.

National Bison Day will be celebrated Saturday, Nov. 4, at LC Nature Park near Roanoke from 1-5 p.m.

The day is all about bison, and in keeping with the theme, the Red Frazier Bison Ranch food trailer will serve up favorites like burgers, hot dogs, and quesadillas with bison meat. Their cheese steak egg rolls come highly recommended and earned high honors when they were unveiled at the Indiana State Fair in 2016. The deep-fried creation is stuffed with peppers, onions, carrots, and bison meat.

LC Nature Park is a 300-acre preserve southwest of 9744 Aboite Road. The compound features bison and elk grazing in the Little River Valley. The event itself includes a Bison Beard Contest, plus games, crafts, story hour, cookie decorating, and hot chocolate.

Ground broken for More Brewing from Chicago

City officials joined with representatives of More Brewing Company to break ground at the southeast corner of West Fourth and North Calhoun streets.

The establishment is one of the first in the second phase of the downtown riverfront development initiative. The building is expected to be 14,000 square foot at 114 E. Fourth St. and open late 2024 or early 2025.

More Brewing, which specializes in craft, stout, fruit, and IPA beers, currently has three similar facilities around Chicago.

Tex-Mex eatery Solbird is worth leaving house

North-side restaurant uses fresh ingredients with local beer on tap

BY WENDY STEIN

WHATZUP FEATURES WRITER

My friends tend to think I never leave my ZIP code. They tease me about my "zone" or my "bubble" that I supposedly stay within.

It's true, I've had the luxury of working from home more than a decade. During the pandemic the pajama lifestyle and convenience of having everything, even groceries, magically show up at my front door sure did make it hard to find motivation to put on pants and leave the house.

But my position has never been one of refusing to go places. Rather, it just has to be worthwhile. For example, there's a Chinese restaurant that I enjoy less than a mile from my house, so why would I drive across town for something similar?

So OK ... maybe there's a little truth to my friends' ribbing.

Last summer my boyfriend and I were going to a social gathering in "Canada," which we call anything north of Dupont Road, and we decided to try someplace new to us for dinner

We ended up at Solbird Kitchen & Tap, a Tex-Mex restaurant for those 21 and older with a focus on fresh local ingredients and local craft beer.

Jerry Perez began with a taco cart that led to the Sol Kitchen food truck, becoming a staple at the YLNI Farmers Market, In 2018, Solbird opened their brick-and-mortar location near the Dupont and Lima roads intersection and sold the food truck a few years after.

TRYING THE BURRITOS

We started our meal with some chips and

I spent the first 40-some years of my life not enjoying guacamole, because too often it's overly pureed mush that doesn't actually resemble food. Then on a vacation I had some guac made tableside, and discovered, "Hey, when it's fresh and has discernible ingredients, it's pretty tasty."

Solbird's guac isn't prepared tableside, but it was fresh and chunky, with a sprinkle of chicharrón dust on top for some added zing. The house-made chips were light and crispy but substantial enough to do their job transporting the guac, with what we referred to as "magic dust," but I believe it was actually ancho seasoning.

I knew I wanted something from the "Death by Burrito" section of the menu for my dinner (I mean, who wouldn't?). I couldn't decide between the carne asada, which sounded like a pretty straight-up steak burrito, and El Californio: ground beef or carne asada (I had the carne), guacamole, queso chihuahua, pico de gallo, ancho fries, salsa, and chipotle cream in a grilled tortilla.

Wait. What was that thing in the middle there? You read "fries" correctly.

I asked our server for her recommendation between those two, and she emphatically recommended El Californio.

"The french fries make it different," she

Yep, it has french fries inside. As someone who once ate a burrito with a corndog buried within, I can assure you that "different" doesn't necessarily mean good.

This time, though, different was great. The fries didn't compete with the burrito-ness at all. They were somehow both crispy and creamy and added yummy textural elements.

Overall, my burrito was packed full of ingredients, with good distribution. I could easily take bites that had all the tastes. And the burrito was huge — half went home for another

My boyfriend had the Mac Attack, a grilled flour tortilla filled with ground beef or chicken (he had the beef), black bean mash, grilled poblano, red peppers and onion, queso chihuahua, pico de gallo, and chipotle crema.

"It was yummy," was his (uncharacteristically brief) report.

Having gotten to try a bite, I can attest to that. It was flavorful without being overly spicy, with good balance. You could taste the flavors of each individual ingredient.

Bring your appetite if you're looking to conquer Solbird's Mac Attack in one sitting.

RETURNING FOR MORE

On another occasion, I was taking a friend to dinner, and I proposed Solbird. Happily, she agreed. She also agreed to share the guacamole.

On this second visit, it again did not disappoint, and it had a little more kick to it that night, but not unpleasantly so for this superspicy lightweight.

Ignoring the call of the burritos, I decided I had to explore a separate area on the menu. Tacos? Ouesadillas?

I opted for a rice bowl: rice verdé, tinga sauce, pico de gallo, queso fresco, chipotle crema, cilantro-green onion, and pickled jalapeño, with a choice of chicken or carne asada. I went for the chicken.

My friend ordered two chicken tinga tacos: chipotle braised chicken breast, guacamole, cilantro-green onion, tomato, roasted red pepper salsa, chipotle crema, queso fresco, and lettuce-cabbage blend in corn tortillas.

So, our meals had very similar components in different shapes.

When my bowl arrived, I was worried it might be a little dry — it just had that look about it. I was delighted to discover how wrong I was. The shredded chicken was fall-apart tender with slightly crispy bits which added flavor and texture, and the rice was fluffy. One of the things I love about bowls is that you control distribution, so it's easy to compose a perfect bite. There was a nice balance of all the components - I didn't find myself wishing I had more of this or less of that, with just enough spiciness to liven things up.

And once again, my meal was abundant, with leftovers that still tasted great when I had them for lunch a few days later.

Having been a few times now, I offer this ultimate compliment to Solbird: I wish it were closer to home, but I will happily drive across town to eat there. In fact, they have a Saturday brunch menu from 11 a.m.-3 p.m. that I'm dying to dig into, with enough delicious-sounding options that it's clearly going to require multiple trips to sample them all. To which I say, let's go!

Grace Potter bringing Fort Wayne native home

Jordan West returns as drummer for band visiting Clyde Theatre

BY WHEAT WILLIAMS

WHATZUP FEATURES WRITER

For more than 20 years, Grace Potter has been a defining force in 21st century rock n'

With her powerful voice, evocative songwriting, take-no-prisoners stage presence, and the studio production of her husband, Eric Valentine, she's back with a rollicking concept album about a life in transit, Mother

"It's more of a life project than an album," she said in a phone interview with Whatzup. "And I think it's far from over."

You can hear where she is at this point in the life project when she and her band, which includes Fort Wayne native Jordan West on drums, stop by The Clyde Theatre on Thursday, Nov. 9, with support from Eddie 9V.

PLAYING A ROLE

Mother Road, where one song spills into another, is an imaginary travelogue down legendary Route 66 across America, where she inhabits the roles of women on the road.

"It's almost like a new artist name that I've taken on, because there's so many versions of me and there's only one life in which to appreciate and sort of compel myself forward," Potter said. "But I feel like a lot of different people a lot of the time, and I think that's what makes the songs feel luscious."

It's an escapist fantasy and rollicking riot.

"It's almost like the Mad Hatter's Tea Party (from Alice in Wonderland), and I'm inviting everybody to that table with me, because I think we all have those sort of secret longings and passions and places that we wish we could have gone or would've gone," she said. "I'll go there, and I'll take you there with me. Even if it's just for the show that night, you'll get a wild ride."

BANDING TOGETHER

Potter and Valentine recorded the album in Nashville, Tennessee's historic RCA Studio A. with a number of musicians she's worked with for years. Now she's taking Mother Road out with a new band and is excited to share their talents.

"This is a really exciting collection of people," she said. "There's my road dog, Kurtis Keber, on bass. I've also got two amazing new guitarists.

"Indya Bratton is only 21 years old," she said of her guitarist, "I found her on Instagram, I really love her style. I thought, 'This is a very interesting person with tastes that come from Back in Fort Wayne working at Sweetwater, she met famous producer Bob Clearmountain, who was in town for GearFest, following a gig at The Brass Rail. He encouraged her to move to Los Angeles in 2015 and ultimately introduced her to Potter.

West lives for the road and tours not only with Potter, but also records and tours with independent country music singer Cam out of Nashville, Tennessee.

Despite her time away from the Summit City, West visits her large family often.

"My mom is a principal in Fort Wayne Community Schools," West said. "My brother Izak West is also a musician. He also works for the Fort Wayne Philharmonic as the director of operations.

"It's really nice to have a community that is so centered in arts and supportive of live music, even though it's not a massive city. I feel like people care a lot more about what's going on."

She speaks with glowing enthusiasm about the chance to play for the hometown crowd

If you can't get a ticket to the show, you can blame both of West's grandmothers, who have apparently bought out huge blocks of seats for all their kinfolk.

"It's a big show," said Potter, the ringmaster. "It's a big old rock n' roll experience and I really enjoy it.

Battle Hymns for Weary Souls: Hail to Jesus, Vol. 2

In the realm of the prog rock that is normally emerging from my speakers, I will contradict any old coot who says, "Welp, they just don't write 'em like 'dat anymore!"

But when it comes one of my other musical fancies — worship — I have to observe that lyrics like, "Teach me some melodious sonnet/Sung by flaming tongues above; Praise the mount, I'm fixed upon it/Mount of Thy redeeming love," have devolved into, "You are perfect in all your ways" (Repeat 8x or more as needed.)

Nope, they don't write 'em like they used to.

So when Tim Bushong, helmsman of Syracuse Baptist Church and master of sliders at T-Bush Studios, produced the first Battle Hymns album, it was a breath of fresh air. He and the voices of his congregation injected new life and a lot of soul into the pages of old hymnals in some great arrangements.

Well, those hymnals are pretty thick, and he and the choir have dug deeper into the pages to give us Battle Hymns for Weary Souls II.

While the sound stays solidly in blues again, a flute and some strings on a couple of tunes go in a more Celtic direction. These hymns are more obscure than on the first outing, but Bushong picked those that have the meatiest lyrics. He included my favorite hymn, "Come Thou Fount," so I shouldn't complain.

If I do have one gripe, it's that Bushong had his "studio ears" on and wanted to capture everything through the mics as cleanly as possible. So, the studio instruments are crisp and compressed, while the choirs are obviously in an acoustically imperfect sanctuary and are a little more fuzzy, so the sonic disparity between the two rooms is more obvious on this album. It's certainly not enough make this release any less of a delight to listen to.

No, they do not write them like this anymore, so savor these gems from the past, delivered with a truckload of soul. — Keith Roman

Blink-182

One More Time...

I still remember the first time hearing Blink-182 during a performance at the X-Games in the 1990s.

Dude Ranch, and my fandom grew with Enema of the State, Take Off Your Pants and Jacket, and the more serious 2003 self-titled album.

Friction within the band ensued, but they released Neighborhoods in 2011. Then guitarist Tom DeLonge was replaced by Alkaline Trio's Matt Skiba for 2016's California and 2019's Nine.

In 2022, DeLonge rejoined bassist Mark Hoppus and drummer Travis Barker, and fans celebrated. The night that One More Time ... was released, I began streaming it. Digging the familiar intro to "Anthem Part 3," I was optimistic. Then DeLonge's voice came up, and it was not the one I remembered in my 20s.

Barker's speedy drumming is still there, as are Hoppus' choruses, but something is just missing.

After some familiar tropes, things get serious, and good, on the fifth song, the title track, and the ensuing "More Than You Know," which sound like a songs by grown-ups who are not rehashing things that happened to them in their 20s.

Following the unneeded 22-second "Turn This Off!," which they must have included to ensure fans they can still be crass, "When We Were Young" is also worth a listen.

There are also highlights with the docile "You Don't Know What You've Got," and "Bad News," and "Blink Wave" is a stand out from the crowd with its '80s emo dance beat.

They drop the pop and go straight punk on "Fk Face," and "Other Side" is a solid track.

"Childhood" is an apt closer for an album that began very iffy for me.

One More Time... has grown a bit on me, but I can't say it will be one that I will be grabbing for my car rides. It's decent, but just not anything that really stands out. — Anthony Gadson

Joyhouse

There's a nostalgia-laden comfort when listening to the three-piece Joyhouse. Chris Kelsey, Ian Skeans, and Kiah Gerig make the kind of melody-driven guitar songs that feel like running into an old friend or opening a photo album and finding Polaroids of those no longer with us. It's a good feeling, but also bittersweet.

Joyhouse carries among the three of them many years worth of writing, recording, gigging, tearing down, and repeating with many different bands over the years. Skeans and Gerig were in the two-piece Shade together, while Kelsey writes and records on his own as well as being a studio wizard behind the board.

Together, they make loud, fuzz-drenched indie rock that is bruising and melancholic. Pummeling riffs and power chords give way to sublime vocal harmonies which are held up by Gerig's Bonham-esque force behind the drums. Think bands like Weezer, The Posies, and Motion City Soundtrack, but put through that wide open, bighearted Midwest contemplation.

Joyhouse dropped their debut EP in August 2020. Between day jobs, family, and the unexpected bummers that come with life itself, Joyhouse are finally able to gift our ears with another round of big riffs and bigger feels.

"Paranoia" tears through the air in a frenzy of pop hooks and ear-numbing volume. A touch of primo-Foos era permeates this catchy tune.

Backtracks CLASSIC ALBUMS

The Cult

Electric (1987)

Although some consider these British lads to look and sound mostly goth, looks were deceptive.

This third release was more of a hard rock sound that could have been thrown in with AC/DC but still touched the heavy punk era of The Misfits. One of my favorite releases of the '80s, Electric is probably their best album, thanks mostly to producer Rick Rubin.

"Wild Flower" opens it up with some heavy guitars as does "Peace Dog." Nothing fancy here, just basic heavy percussion behind the throaty vocals of Ian Astbury, who could hit all the notes effortlessly and with a pretty nice range. His vocals front Bill Duffy's guitar work, which featured enough short solos to let it all hang out before it became too monotonous in just under four minutes.

"King Contrary Man" has a lot of trademarks of hair bands, including straight-forward riffs that clearly sound like AC/DC, of whom they were big fans.

One of the more mainstream tracks is "Love Removal Machine," which had some good rotation on MTV and rock stations. I even remember hearing an extended mix of this one and could do without it, but again, everything got remixed in the decade of excess.

For some reason they decided to record a cover of Steppenwolf's "Born To Be Wild," but then again so did Ann Margret. It's not horrible. It just seemed so lazy at this point in their career.

Astbury and Duffy continue to produce records, with 2022's Under the Midnight Sun being their 11th. — Dennis Donahue

Kelsey and Skeans lock in beautifully vocally. It's a perfect combination.

"Something More" keeps those vibes going. There are some great but subtle start/stop moments, too. The song goes right into "Stay" which almost feels like Part 2.

This is an EP, so it's a short but sweet shot of adrenaline-fueled feels. "Used" gets grimy with touches of early '90s alternative vibes, reminiscent of Chavez and Nada Surf. "Disappear" ends the journey with a gently strummed acoustic and vocals, bringing to mind the late Elliott Smith.

Five songs spread over 11 minutes. Eleven minutes well spent, and Joyhouse is happy to have you hit play and repeat as many times as you need. — J. Hubner ow streaming on Peacock, and reportedly making a killing in theaters, the video-game adaptation Five Nights at Freddy's may work as fan service for those who love the source material. However, it won't work for those looking for a satisfying horror movie.

Horror movie lacks scares, tension

It doesn't seem like it should be difficult to make a creepy movie about murderous animatronic robots — after all, Nicolas Cage starred in Willy's Wonderland a couple years ago — but director and co-writer Emma Tammi just doesn't give this film what it needs. Stifled by too much exposition and heavy-handed character work, this could have worked as a lean-and-mean R-rated slasher, but it flounders as an overwrought PG-13 ghost story. Unless its wall-to-wall fan service is meant to register as scary, I can't imagine many will be spooked by this, even during the spookiest of all the seasons.

Scream alum Matthew Lillard pops up in a few scenes as a career counselor and serves as a sore reminder of a horror franchise that has an infinite amount more humor and self-awareness than Five Nights at Freddy's. Hutcherson does what he can to prop up the patchwork pathos behind his character, but the childhood trauma material isn't a good fit for a film that is supposed to revolve around killer robots. His repetitive dream sequences call to mind another horror series with a villain named Freddy at its center, but the gloved nemesis of the Nightmare on Elm Street movies has a devilish persona that kept audiences coming back for decades. I'm not sure quite what this film has that will lead to that sort of longevity within the cinematic medium.

When Freddy and his autonomous crew do pop up, the film at least has more of a sense of menace than the ghost children that haunt Mike during his dream state and then in his waking hours.

Kudos to Blumhouse Productions and Tammi for getting Jim Henson's Creature Shop involved with bringing the demented robo-critters to life. Even though the characters aren't in the movie enough, the animatronics and puppeteering brings a tactility and presence to the Freddy's foes that would have been lacking severely had they chosen CG effects instead. There's a grueling sequence involving the spring locks inside one of the mascot's outfits that was an effective piece of mechanical terror one may expect out of a Hellraiser entry.

Sadly, the rest of Five Nights at Freddy's is mostly anodyne by comparison.

If Blumhouse wanted to keep this film PG-13 to retain the core audience of young gamers, then I understand not making it an ultra-violent gorefest, but is it too much to ask it to at least be creepy or unsettling? Not every horror movie has to be rated R, and there are loads of examples that succeed with less severe ratings. I was shocked how little foreboding or tension there is in the build-up to the reveal of the Freddy's crew, despite the film's best intentions with a razor-sharp cold open.

Regardless, Five Nights at Freddy's has already made back quadruple its budget in box office sales, so there's little doubt we'll have more of these on the horizon. Perhaps they'll find more clever and mischievous uses for the pizzeria-dwelling droids in the sequels, but this inaugural entry gets things off to a creaky start.

New movies coming this weekend

- Coming to theaters is What Happens Later, a romantic comedy starring Meg Ryan and David Duchovny about a pair of exes who, after bumping into each other when their flights get delayed due to a snowstorm, spend the night at the airport reliving their past.
- Premiering on Netflix is Nyad, a sports biopic starring Annette Bening and Jodie Foster about athlete Diana Nyad who, at the age of 60 and with the help of her best friend and coach, commits to achieving her lifelong dream: a 110-mile open ocean swim from Cuba to Florida.
- Streaming on Hulu is Quiz Lady, a comedy starring Awkwafina and Sandra Oh about a game show-obsessed woman and her estranged sister who work together to help cover their mother's gambling debts.

Kreischer keeps his shirtless tour going ne of the hottest live acts in stand-up, comedian/podcast host/ actor and self-described "machine" Bert Kreischer, is extending his Tops Off World

Tour to an additional 34 cities across the U.S., kicking off in January.

Named Rolling Stone's "Number One Partier in the Nation" in 1997, Kreischer has evolved into one Notes of the top-gross- CHRIS HUPE stand-up comedians in the business.

Road

With a seemingly effortless storytelling style, Kreischer excels at sharing anecdotes about his family, fatherhood, and life in general, proving there is a way to continue partying into middle age.

Following an incredibly successful global stint throughout 2023 that included a stop at Parkview Field in Fort Wayne, Kreischer plans to bring his shirtless antics to Van Andel Arens in Grand Rapids on March 7, Nutter Center in Dayton on March 15, United Center in Chicago on April 4, and Nationwide Arena in Columbus, Ohio, on April 5.

Bad Bunny stops in Chicago

Following a record-setting touring schedule in 2022, Puerto Rican sensation Bad Bunny spent 2023 pursuing his other passions. He made appearances for WWE, including at that organization's top event Wrestlemania, and he just hosted an episode of Saturday Night

Now the man who grossed more than $435 million in 2022 is going back on the road for a 31-city, 47-performance Most Wanted Tour of North American arenas.

Designed to be a more "intimate" experience than the previous stadium tours, the trek begins Feb. 21 with three shows at this region's only stop, Chicago's United Center, from March 28-30.

G. Love heads out on road

Philadelphia-based creators of "hip-hop blues," G. Love & Special Sauce, whose "Cold Beverage" was a college radio staple in the 1990s, is heading out on the road for a 30th anniversary tour.

Known for their unique, laid back, rootsy sound that encompasses Delta blues, hip-hop, rock n' roll, soul, and funk, the band has mostly performed at festivals and as a support act in recent years.

This three-month headlining run includes a stop at Park West in Chicago on Jan. 12, The Ark in Ann Arbor Jan. 17, The Vogue in Indianapolis on Jan. 18, and the House of Blues in Cleveland on Jan. 19.

In addition, the band will re-release a special edition of its 1994 self-titled debut.

Sam Hunt stopping in region

Country star Sam Hunt plans to take over arenas across North America in 2024, with Brett Young and Lily as supporting acts.

The Outskirts Tour includes two stops in our area for the fivetime Grammy nominee and Diamond-selling artist, with Van Andel Arena in Grand Rapids on Feb. 22. Allstate Arena in Chicago on Feb. 24, and Nationwide Arena in Coumbus, Ohio, on March 2 topping the list.

The upcoming trek is, of course, named after Hunt's hit 2023 single. "Outskirts."

Eagles extend farewell tour

The Eagles' Long Goodbye just got a little longer.

The legendary band announced six more dates have been added to their tour, including a March 8 stop at the United Center in Chicago.

The members should have a nice nest egg on which to retire when the tour finally ends sometime in 2025. They grossed $85.1 million in 2022 and will reportedly be close to the $100 million mark this year.

Steely Dan will open the Chicago show.

Quick Hits

GRAND FUNK RAILROAD

7:30 P.M. SATURDAY, NOV. 4 NISWONGER PAC, VAN WERT

With more than five decades of music and touring behind them, Grand Funk Railroad are an American institution.

Enjoying their peak popularity in the 1970s on the strength of hits "Walk Like a Man," "Bad Time," "The Loco-Motion," and, of course, the gargantuan hit "We're an American Band," Grand Funk Railroad released five platinum and four gold albums from 1969-1974.

Now with a touring lineup that boasts former Kiss guitarist Bruce Kulick and supporting original members Don Brewer and Mel Schacher, Grand Funk Railroad have had a consistent lineup for more than two decades while traveling the world to deliver their songs in a live setting.

They will stop by the Niswonger Performing Arts Center in Van Wert on Nov. 4. — Chris Hupe

VETERANS DAY PARADE

11 A.M. SATURDAY, NOV. 4 PARNELL AVENUE

Fort Wayne's annual Veterans Day Parade will take on the theme of "A Salute to Service" when it is held Saturday, Nov. 4, at 11 a.m., prior to the actual Nov. 11 federal holiday.

The parade, honoring military veterans of the United States Armed Forces who were honorably discharged, will follow its traditional route beginning at Bob Arnold North Side Park and travelling north to Memorial Coliseum Veterans Plaza on Parnell Avenue.

The ceremony will take place at Veterans Plaza (weather permitting) or inside Memorial Hall at the Coliseum for placement of wreaths, playing of "Taps," and remembering fallen brothers and sisters in arms. — Chris Hupe

SHREK THE MUSICAL

NOV. 4-19 ARTS UNITED CENTER

Shrek the Musical brings all your favorite characters from the trio of DreamWorks films to life on stage.

Based on the Oscar-winning movies, this music-centered adventure is a Tony Award winner featuring several songs that enhance the storyline and stick with you well after the show has ended.

Presented by Fort Wayne Civic Theatre at the Arts United Center on nine occasions from Nov. 4-19, the plot unfolds in this one-of-akind, hilarious fairy tale as the ogre Shrek befriends a talking donkey on a journey where curses are reversed, "monsters" get the girls, donkeys and dragons find love, and princesses are beautiful in all shapes and sizes.
